You Are Cordially Invited . . .

. . . to visit and enjoy the outstanding exhibit of Southwestern art in the spacious foyers of Desert Magazine's beautiful Pueblo along Highway 111 between Palm Springs and Indio, California. The finest work of more than fifty of the Southwest's best known artists make up this ever changing display.

Visitors are always welcome at the admission-free Desert Magazine art gallery which is open seven days a week from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Adjoining the art gallery is the Desert Book and Crafts Shop where the best of current Southwestern books are available for your reading enjoyment. Visitors may browse at will in the restful atmosphere of the gallery and book shop.

"Friend or Stranger, you are welcome here."

BOOKS of the SOUTHWEST

Books reviewed on this page are selected as being worthy of your consideration. They can be purchased by mail from Desert Magazine Book Shop, Palm Desert, California. Please add four percent sales tax on orders to be sent to California. Write for complete catalog of Southwestern books.

THE ARMY'S ROLE IN THE SETTLEMENT OF THE WEST

The popular conception of two-gun sheriffs and determined vigilantes as being the sole forces of law and order in the West is amended by Aurora Hunt in her latest book, James Henry Carleton, Western Frontier Dragoon.

By tracing General Carleton's career, author Hunt sheds additional light on the U. S. Army's problems and accomplishments of a century ago. "The constructive efforts of the United States soldiers have frequently been minimized," writes the author. In addition to helping tame the lawless element in the West, they "surveyed and built roads for others to travel; they explored and exploited yet not often for their own profit. The construction of forts served not only for protection but as experimental farms where seeds were planted, fruit trees and vegetables propagated. Their saw mills were replaced by flour mills and sites of forts became cities . . ." And only through the protection offered by the soldiers were the geologists, ornithologists, archeologists, meteorologists and other scientists able to function on the frontier.

Carleton was active in the South-
